Description

I think that we need small gallery (or set of thumbnails) on our Welcome page, to let users see screenshots of our GUI without going deep inside to the corresponding section.

The gallery should reside where currently our GISAS geometry plot is residing.

This has to be intended for users of "Darth Vader" type, which will not browse our documentation, but probable will do one single click on "Read more" button.

Also my mother was complaining, that she was able to see some plots only after some minutes of chaotic clicking.

- Description updated

I believe this requires a new top level menu item 'Screenshots', so the occasional site visitor immediately sees where he can find this gallery.
